sites/transporters

Hi Sharon,

Sorry that I missed you yesterday. Here is the website that we use to see if contractors are debarred:

<https://www.epls.gov/>

This website does not provide a list of contractors that are in good standing, but rather a list of contractors that are currently debarred from being awarded a government contract.

You can use the search tool on the website to search by name to see if a particular contractor or principal is debarred. It is best to start with multiple names and partial, then work your way down from there by adding more unique information in and advanced search. For example, "Weeks Marine" brings up 60 results, but when you go to the advanced search, "Weeks Marine" in "NJ" brings up 0 results.

You can try the search if you want, and call if you have questions. Or, we can meet on Monday.

Subject: Fw: Metal Bank - Sub-Contractor List and Non-Haz
sites/transporters

Hi Ryan,

Here's the list of sub contractors that according to the Consent Decree:

"i. The Settling Third-Party Defendants shall submit to EPA for acceptance by EPA the names and qualifications of any additional contractors and subcontractors

they propose to use to satisfy any requirement of this Consent Decree before such contractor or subcontractor performs any Work. If EPA does not respond with a notice accepting or disapproving the proposal for additional contractors and subcontractors within fourteen (14) days of receipt by EPA of Settling Third-Party Defendants' selections, the proposal for additional contractors and subcontractors shall be deemed accepted."

Please let me know if you can check out our system to ensure they are in good standing or if you want to meet on Monday, July 20th.

Specifically, I am particularly interested in the following subs: analytical, barge svcs, crane svcs, diving, drilling, thread bar & tierods, marine towing, pre-cast concrete, safety equipment, surveyors, waste removal, waste water equipment, and utility construction.

I appreciate your help. Thanks,

Sharon:

Attached is the:

- Sevenson list of potential sub-contractors/suppliers that will support their performance of the work
- List of their non-hazardous waste sites and transporters arranged within the Philadelphia region that will service the project.

We will provide adequate notice and appropriate documentation for any hazardous waste or TSCA wastes once we generate and/or characterize the constituents.
